Abstract The purpose of this study was to determine the effect of a 12-week training program on the physical and psychological health of sedentary, middle-aged women. The program consisted of three sessions per week, each lasting 45 minutes. The first session was a warm-up, the second was a cardiovascular workout, and the third was a strength training session. The program was designed to improve cardiovascular fitness, increase muscle strength, and reduce body fat. The results of the study showed that the program was effective in achieving these goals. The women who participated in the program showed significant improvements in cardiovascular fitness, muscle strength, and body fat. The program was well-received by the women, and they reported feeling more energetic and confident after completing the program. The results of this study suggest that a 12-week training program can be an effective way to improve the physical and psychological health of sedentary, middle-aged women.

to ensure the effectiveness of the program, the first step was to identify the specific needs of the program. This was done by conducting a needs assessment, which involved interviewing the program staff and the community members. The results of the assessment identified the need for a program that would provide information and support to the community members. This led to the development of the program, which was designed to provide information and support to the community members. The program was then implemented, and the results were evaluated. The evaluation showed that the program was effective in providing information and support to the community members, and that it had a positive impact on the community. This led to the program being expanded to other communities.

RP vets bill OK'd by US Senate panel

THE UNITED STATES Senate veterans committee yesterday approved a bill that would provide a special set of benefits for Filipino World War II veterans as well as others who had fought under the US flag.

Philippine Ambassador to Washington Willy Gaa said in a statement released by the Department of Foreign Affairs that Senate Bill No. 1315, or the Omnibus Benefits Bill, was approved in a special hearing conducted by the committee at the Dirksen Building on Capitol Hill.

Special occasion

"Today marks a special and historic occasion in our long-standing quest for justice and equity for our brave and courageous Filipino World War II veterans," Gaa said.

"More significantly, and for the first time in history, the important contributions of Filipino veterans of the last World War are now being officially recognized by a US legislative enactment," he added.

This was the farthest the equity bill has come since the US Congress first tried to repeal the 1946 Rescission Law in 1993. That budget bill deprived thousands of Filipino veterans the benefits due them as former members of the US Armed Forces.

Gallantry

Gaa said the bill's passage into law would benefit thousands of surviving Filipino veterans in the Philippines.

More importantly, he said, it was a recognition of the gallantry of Filipinos who heeded the call of then US President Franklin Roosevelt to join the war effort.

The US Senate version of the bill provides for a minimum annual pension of $3,600 for a Filipino World War II veteran living alone and without dependents. The amount varies if he is married, with dependents or the beneficiary is a veteran's widow.

The bill also increases the life insurance benefits of all disabled veterans and improves the benefits of soldiers with severe burns or traumatic injuries—like those suffered by servicemen who served in Iraq.

Rectify a wrong

In a report to the US Congress, Gaa gave the number of surviving Filipino World War II veterans in the US Army Roster at 18,155, about two-thirds of whom are living in the Philippines.

Gaa also thanked Sen. Daniel K. Akaka, chair of the Senate veterans committee, for sponsoring the bill and for working for its passage in the committee.

Akaka has said the equity bill "gives the committee an opportunity to rectify a wrong done to Filipino World War II veterans over 60 years ago."

Threats, intense opposition to US immigration bill

WASHINGTON, April 25 (AP) — The House of Representatives passed a bill Tuesday that would allow the federal government to deport immigrants who are convicted of crimes, even if they have been granted asylum. The bill, which is part of a larger immigration reform package, has faced intense opposition from immigrant rights groups and some lawmakers. The bill is expected to pass in the Senate as well, but it will face a veto from President George W. Bush.

The bill is part of a larger immigration reform package that also includes provisions for legalizing immigrants who have been in the country for a long time. The bill is expected to pass in the Senate as well, but it will face a veto from President George W. Bush.

IG Summit to retire dollar debt

de Bont et al.

A schematic diagram illustrating the relationship between the number of nodes (N) and the number of links (L). The horizontal axis represents the Number of Nodes (N), ranging from 0 to 10. The vertical axis represents the Number of Links (L), also ranging from 0 to 10. A solid diagonal line indicates the condition $L = N - 1$. Several data points are plotted as small circles along this line, corresponding to integer values of N from 2 to 10.
